Massive cleanup begins Monday

BY ED LEPOMA
The massive cleanup in Hancock County and the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland is expected to begin Monday.

The Board of Supervisors met in recess Wednesday at the courthouse to go over suggestions on how the county would let the contract or contracts for cleanup. Mayor Eddie Favre and Waveland Mayor John Mason also sat in on the talks.

Guidelines for calling for bids were drawn up and agreed upon by County Road Supt.

Tommy Moran, Ron Vanney and Ray Eaton, the public works directors for the Bay and Waveland, respectively.

After some discussion it was unanimously decided that contractors will only be allowed to bid on picking up the debris that can be taken to four designated burn sites in Hancock County. Each contractor will be called on to make an initial sweep of the area, then after about three weeks, make another sweep.

The items to be collected consist mainly of tree stumps, limbs, and leaves. Contractors will be required to separate refrigerators, roofing shingles and other items that can only be disposed of at permitted rubbish sites, and the county and cities will pick up those items once the city streets and county roads are cleared of the burnable debris.

To speed the cleanup effort, the county has been divided into six areas: Waveland, Bay St. Louis, everything in the county south of Interstate 10 to the corporate limits, Diamondhead, everything in the county north of I-10 and west of 603 and everything in the county north of I-10 and east of 603.

One contractor can submit a lump sum bid for the entire county, but that was not expected since supervisors and the mayors agreed that work in all areas must begin simultaneously by Monday and be completed within 45 days.

Supervisors called for sealed bids by noon Friday, and plan to meet at 1:30 p.m. to award the contract or contracts.

Based on a visual inspection of debris piled up in the county, the Federal Emergency Management Administration (FEMA) has allocated the county and the two cities each $35,000 to begin the clean-up effort, but estimates are the job will cost far more than the $105,000 currently earmarked for the massive effort that lies ahead.

Council considers limiting historic district ordinance

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Officials have been polishing up a proposed historic preservation ordinance for Bay St. Louis, and appear in agreement that it should cover a more limited area than initially proposed.

City Council members were told Monday that city attorney John Scafide wants to limit the scope of the historic district at first, basically including the properties that are listed on the National Registry of Historic Places.

When the proposed ordinance first came to City Council for action, the ad hoc committee that drafted it suggested a district that would stretch from the railroad tracks to the beach, and from Bay Oaks Drive to Cedar Point.

But the chairman of that committee, Charles Gray, said Monday Scafide told him the district needs to be limited in scope initially, with additions possible after the preservation ordinance is in effect.

Gray said he's drawing up a map showing all the properties now on the National Register, for

Waveland deals with aftermath of hurricane

BY BETSY GAGNET
The Waveland Board of Aldermen continued to deal with the aftermath of Hurricane Georges, taking action on several matters at Tuesday's regular meeting in connection with the storm.

The board ratified a poll vote approving the signing of a Proclamation of Existence of a Local Emergency due to the storm.

Also ratified was a poll vote authorizing Mayor John Mason to sign a joint resolution requesting the formation of an Inter-Local Agreement with Bay St. Louis and Hancock County for the cleanup and removal of debris, allowing the three entities to coordinate clean-up efforts.

Bids by contractors for the cleanup have been called for by noon Friday. Waveland is one of six areas the county has been divided into for purposes of streamlining the cleanup. Work in each area is expected to begin simultaneously on Monday.

The board also approved payment to police officers in overtime rather than comp time for services during the storm. The city hopes to get reimbursement for much of the amount paid from FEMA.

In other news from Waveland, the board approved the implementation of a work-release program as an option for sentencing in the Municipal Court. The program will be run through the Municipal Court judges, the Waveland Police Department and the Public Works Department.

Kiln Library project to begin

BY ED LEPOMA
Construction should begin soon on the Kiln Library, but specifications aren't ready yet to put the Juvenile Detention Center out to bid again.

Hancock County supervisors met Monday and concurred in the Library Board's recommendations to allow J. Jerard Ward of Gretna, La., to withdraw its low bid of $675,100 which it submitted last month.

Library Board Attorney Michael Haas said Ward informed the Board's architect, Gary Dunn, that it made "what we believe to be an honest error in calculating the cost of the project." The error amounted to $376,447, Haas said, and Ward asked to be allowed to withdraw its bid.

The architect had estimated the new 10,000-square-foot library to be built on a 12.2 acre site off Hwy. 603 just north of the present library would cost an estimated $1 million, and $1.2 million in state bonds has just been sold to build the facility.

Beacon Contractors Inc., of Biloxi submitted the next low-bid at $971,407, and Haas

Bay wrestles with zoning issue

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The president of Bay St. Louis City Council has called for a building inspector's report on an entire subdivision, to learn how many homes have been built in violation of city setback regulations.

In an unrelated development, City Council has imposed another 120-day moratorium on any new construction in the un-zoned, annexed area of town.

The call for a zoning compliance check came as council deliberated a request from Jeffery Reed who wants to build a home in Pecan Park subdivision.

During the discussion, and in a Planning and Zoning Commission debate last week, suspicions were raised that other homes had been built in the subdivision which failed to meet minimum setback regulations.

One home which is under construction currently may not meet the city's regulations for side yard widths, some officials said.

The city code calls for 10-foot setbacks from a property's side yard line in the subdivision.

Pecan Park subdivision, meanwhile, has a less restrictive covenant requiring only 8-foot side setbacks.

Planning and Zoning Commission officials had rejected Reed's request last week, when Reed asked for an extra two and a half feet on either side of his house. Tuesday, Council overturned the commission's action, and granted Reed two-foot variances on both sides.

Black voted against Reed's request, saying he had asked for a building inspector's report on actual measurements of homes in the subdivision.

Black, whose ward encompasses the subdivision at issue, said of seven homes that have been built in the subdivision over the past five years, he doesn't recall any builder asking for a variance from the city code.

That may be in light of the less restrictive Pecan Park covenants, some said. Still, Black persisted that the 10-foot sideline regulation is in effect, not the eight-foot covenant regulation. "I'm just curious to see how many people are following it," Black said.

There was considerable confusion over what Reed actually had requested.

Various, the Reed variance request was said to be two feet 11 inches, three feet 11 inches, four inches, five inches and two feet five inches. In the end, council agreed to a two-foot variance on each side, saying at least that is compatible with Pecan Park's own regulations.

The case also was unusual in that a member of the Planning and Zoning Commission, Maurice Singleton Jr., was said in the minutes of the commission meeting last week to have voted against Reed's request.

But Singleton appeared at City Council on Tuesday, saying he had voted in favor of it. He also made a personal plea in Reed's behalf, and submitted a letter recommending it.

Singleton said if the commission had known a number of homes had been built using the eight-foot setback standard, "I feel certain we would have approved it."

Meanwhile, two other residents of the subdivision showed up to protest the variance, arguing that approval of the variance for one property owner would require approval of others in the future.

But the couple, who live next to the property in question, said nobody in the neighborhood would object to an eight-foot side yard, since that's what the covenants demand.

Singleton said his own house has a side yard that's 2 inches

County expects to begin community cleanup soon

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County supervisors are soon expected to select one or more firms to begin hauling away debris from Hurricane Georges.

Supervisors met Monday for their regularly scheduled session, but are in recess from day to day so they can quickly reconvene to handle storm-related business. Besides the cleanup details, supervisors also heard complaints from residents of the White Cypress Community and Diamondhead during Monday's meeting.

At the outset of the meeting, Civil Defense Director Lynette Carbon announced she had selected the Civic Center on Longfellow as the county's central Defense Relief Center, where residents and business owners can apply for a myriad of assistance.

Carbon brought with her representatives from the Federal Emergency Management Administration. She said FEMA's Community Affairs Officer Steven Slicis and Public Affairs Coordinator Gene Romano will be coordinating relief in Hancock County.

The center was scheduled to open at 7 a.m. Wednesday, but Carbon said anyone needing assistance was first required to apply by phone by calling 1/800-462-9062. Agents will ask pertinent questions as to the extent of damage or the needs you might have and schedule follow-up appointments with individuals.

The center will be operating from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m., seven days a week until further notice. Carbon said the phone lines were likely to be jammed in the early morning hours. She advised residents to call in the afternoons or at night.

The cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland have signed an inter-local agreement with Hancock County to let supervisors take the lead in determining how many haulers will be needed to clear city streets and county roads.

The two cities and county are also putting together a listing of public properties damaged during the hurricane, including what repairs might be needed on roads and bridges, the seawall and the sandbeach. Initial estimates are Hancock County's sustained at least $2.5 million in damage, but that figure is expected to go higher.

In connection with the storm, Board President Philip Moran also announced he had received word that Hancock County residents on food stamps will be sent replacement stamps by mail.

Recipients will receive half of their September allotment of stamps, but the county Food Pantry, the American Red Cross and other agencies and organizations were still reporting they were giving out food and other items to the needy.

After the storm details were out of the way, supervisors listened intently to complaints from Larry Carter and other residents of the White Cypress Community in the northern part of the county.

Carter said his Property Owners Association had complained in the past to the previous Board of Supervisors and to the current board, but had gotten little attention.

The main complaint of property owners seems to be the number of hunters who are coming into the area with dogs and weapons. Carter says fences have been torn down, and the hunters' vehicles are running on private property and ruining lawns.

Supervisors promised they would ask Sheriff Ronnie Peterson to beef up surveillance and also enlist the help of game wardens.

John Ritten, well-known real estate agent in Diamondhead, came to complain about the current makeup of the Diamondhead Water and Sewer District.

He said the five-member board has the power to set rates, and thus affect growth in Diamondhead, but board members are not answerable to anyone.

He said vacancies on the board need to be announced in the event other property owners might be interested in serving Ritten said the Property Owners Association and Diamondhead businesses should be able to nominate persons for any vacancy coming up on the Water and Sewer Board.

But, County attorney Gerald Gex said the Diamondhead Water and Sewer District operates the same as others that exist throughout Hancock County.

He said supervisors take a hands-off policy once a District is formed, and the Board's become an autonomous body, able to set rates and policy.

Present law doesn't allow for members to be selected by election, Gex said, but there might be some areas for possible reform. Ritten asked supervisors "to defer any appointments until the system is reformed."

But Lisa Cowand, whose District 3 includes Diamondhead, made a motion to reappoint Norm Shubach to a new five-year term, and the motion passed 4-1 with Moran voting against.

Cowand did promise Ritten in the future when another term expires or a vacancy occurs, she will get input from property owners and businesses before naming a replacement and that upcoming vacancies would be announced.

In other business Monday, supervisors unanimously passed a resolution asking Secretary of State Eric Clark to extend an agreement past November between the Port and Harbor Commission and developers of the proposed Casino World gambling resort proposed south of Diamondhead.

That lease would funnel an estimated $450,000 yearly into the Port and Harbor budget once a casino is developed.

Cowand said she was opposed to a casino in Diamondhead, but she voted for the resolution sponsored by Moran because she said if a casino is built there, she would like to see the port reap the economic benefits.

Supervisors authorized the Port and Harbor Commission to enter into a lease with Port Bienville Ministries, which plans to build a Seamen's Center at the rear of the old Halter Marine site near the ship channel.

Supervisors also concurred in Port and Harbor recommendations to accept the low bid of Earl Campbell at $211,200 to begin putting down one mile of replacement tract at Port Bienville. The present 85-pound rail will be replaced by 115-pound railing to better handle heavier cargo that will be transported by rail to the Wellman plastics/manufacturing plant.

On recommendation of the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire District, supervisors also appointed Norma Jean Soroe a Commissioner, replacing Jim Maness, who resigned.

Supervisors also asked county engineer Larry Seal to look into the cost of repaving crumbling aprons in front of the firehouse on Clermont Harbor and also at Leetown.

Bay to clean up

Bay St. Louis leaders say that cleanup of hurricane debris from the streets should begin on Friday.

City Council agreed to an agreement Tuesday putting the effort under the contractual umbrella of Hancock County officials, along with Waveland.

In the meantime, city officials are urging residents to refrain from piling branches and tree trunks in drainage ditches.

OUR CUSTOMERS ARE THE REASON.

Thousands of people made it possible for us to recover from the ravages of Hurricane Georges. Their combined efforts helped us restore electricity in record time to our 57,000 customers and their families. Not one single resident of the Gulf Coast and surrounding counties was left untouched by the effects of this unyielding storm.

During this emergency, we saw the community pull together. Without the tremendous support of the local folks and the patience and understanding of our customers, we would not have been able to complete the rebuilding of our electric system.

Communication key to school safety

The Bay Waveland District hosted a school safety forum in the Bay High auditorium Monday night at 7 p.m. School officials, board members, city law enforcement officers, and a national expert on school law were on the agenda.

The forum came in response to an August 27 incident involving a Bay Middle School fifth grader who brought a .22 caliber revolver to school. A story concerning the scope and the issues addressed at the forum is offered on Page 5A of today's edition of the Sea Coast Echo.

Information was well presented. Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil was supportive and voiced confidence in the school's ability to respond to such an incident. Johnny Purvis, the nationally known expert on school law, could not have offered the district more affirmation on its handling of the incident, its procedures and policies and its working relationship with the city police and county youth courts.

Repeatedly, the need for parental involvement in school activities was stressed. District school superintendent Mike Reed said schools and parents need to hear each other talk. McNeil said ultimately it is the parent who must deal with the child. Board member Bryon Griffith said a kid with a behavioral problem didn't develop it that day (in school). Purvis said safe schools must have the support of parents and guardians. But no sound bite could have more dramatically drove the point home as did the conspicuous absence of parents in the auditorium. It was disheartening.

Notice of the forum appeared once in the Sun Herald and twice in this publication. And, as Kathy Everard, a grandparent of a North Bay Elementary student pointed out, the schools did send home a note. However, the note went home Monday afternoon, only hours before the meeting. On a half sheet of plain white paper. No letterhead. No signature. Nothing to separate it from the other notes that routinely make their way home from school. Nothing that said to parents: Your involvement is essential to the safety of your child at school.

Later, upon further questioning, it was revealed that Bay High School, with the majority of students at risk, chose not to send notice at all.

Everard's remarks about the short notice was interpreted as there being a need for better communication between the schools and the parents. There was audible agreement to the understatement from the few parents who were in the auditorium.

Earlier this year, some parents resorted to threats out of frustration over the implementation of authentic assessment in the third grade. The issue wasn't so much a problem with the policy as it was with the parents not knowing ahead of time what was happening.

Arguments over the racial composition of dance team members flared when NAACP and church leaders weren't told how the selection process was accomplished and flared once more most recently over homecoming nominations.

The conflict of authentic assessment was resolved by giving the parents what they needed: a handbook and a grading scale. The dance teams and homecoming arguments were settled by letting parents know how the selection and nomination process worked. Each conflict was resolved with communication.

We won't know just how many parents might have shown up for the forum, if they had known about it ahead of time. We won't know how many worries and fears might have been calmed or how many good questions might have been asked. We do know that the forum was an excellent presentation. One that should have been heard by every parent, teacher, church and civic leader who have interest or concern in the welfare of our children. It was an opportunity missed by the Bay Waveland School District to ensure parental involvement in the schools.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Death of Kiln man leaves unanswered questions

To the Editor:

On Aug. 29, it was a good night for Brett. He was doing what he loved to do, racing his late-model dirt car. His family and friends were there to cheer him on. The car was running good, and Brett was flying until he went too high and hit the concrete wall at 90 mph.

Our hearts were racing until we saw Brett was okay. We fixed what we could see was wrong with the car and Brett went out to make the feature race, but something had broken in the steering, so Brett couldn't finish the race.

Brett was a little disgusted with himself, but still, in all he knew he'd tried his best. He had fun, and he had next weekend to try it again.

So he thought! Brett never got the chance to try it again. On the way home, three miles from the track, a man ran a stop sign and Brett was broadsided in his driver's door, and he was killed instantly.

His big brother, Steven, was thrown from the truck and was seriously injured, leaving him with only partial use of his right arm and other serious injuries.

Now the families are trying to cope with the loss of Brett, but it makes it hard when insult is added to injury.

You see, the man who killed Brett was a Harrison County Police Officer who was fresh out of the Academy and only on the job for six days.

All the newspapers say he was responding to a call, but what they don't say is that he was not dispatched to a call. He was going to assist a call, which two other officers were already at, when he took it upon himself to drive at a high rate of speed.

The officer says he was unfamiliar with the area and was reading a map when the accident occurred. The Highway Patrol estimated the speed of the officer to be no less than 78 mph.

Now there are three things I keep wondering about.

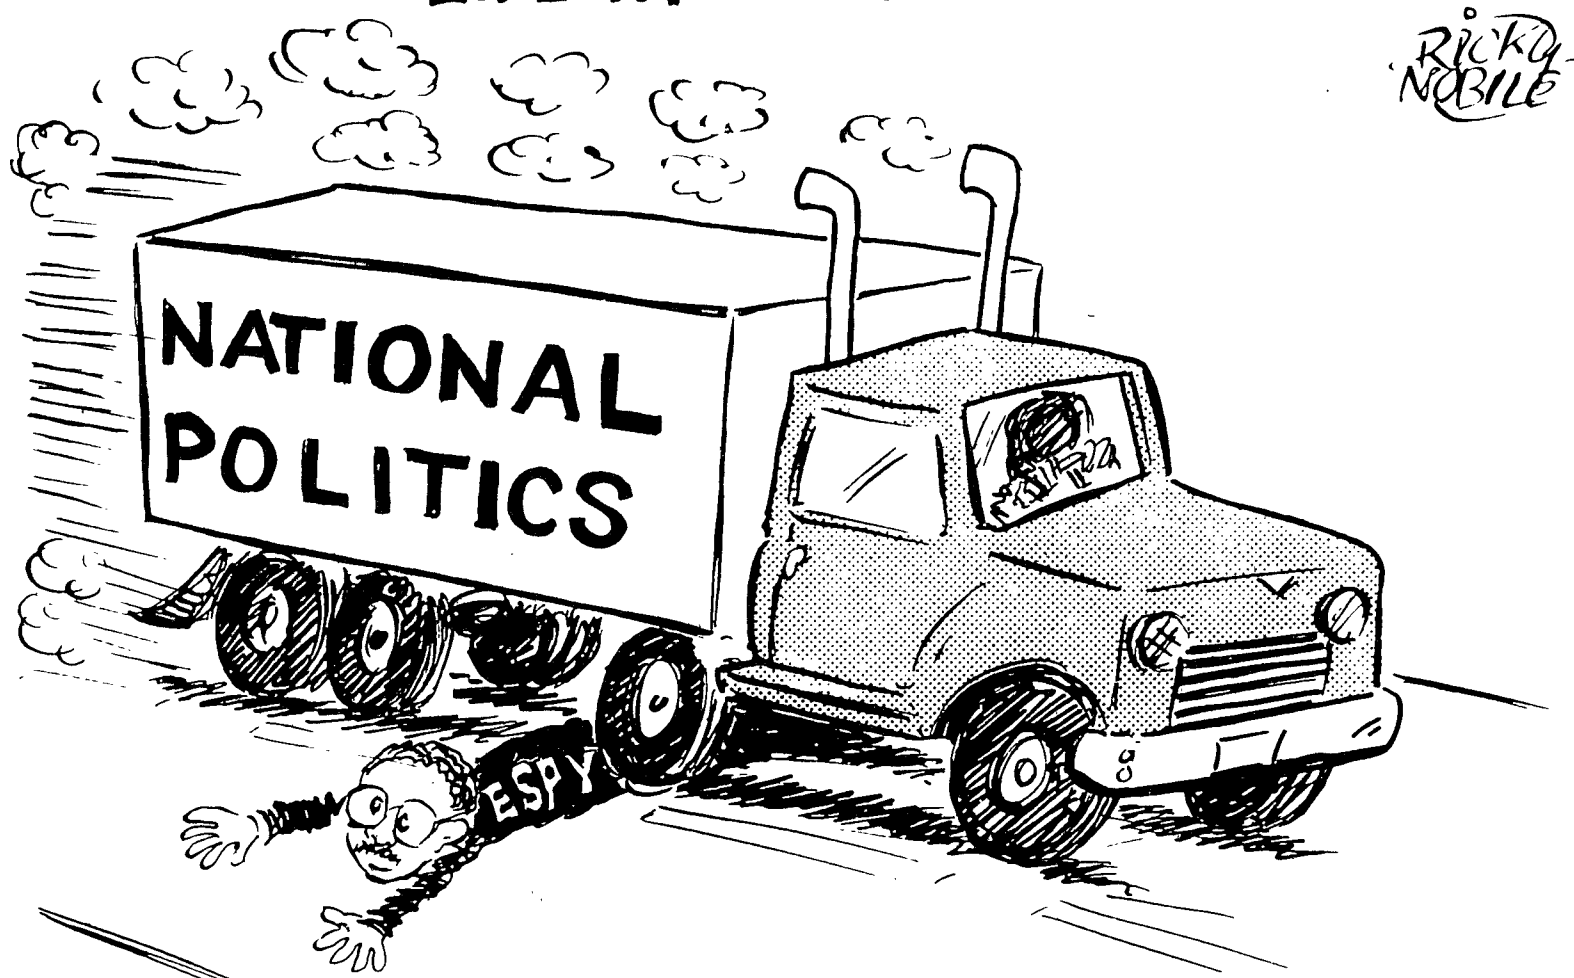

1. I wonder why someone so lost would drive so fast.

2. I wonder what would have happened to Brett if he had ran that same stop sign and killed that same officer. Would he be in jail right now or would he be working right now?

3. I wonder if Brett's 15-month-old son, Little Brett Kelly Lacoste, will ever know how fine of a man his daddy really was.

LIFE IN THE FAST LANE

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Try these ideas on for size:

* Require schools to be used for sunrise-to-sunset classes on a 12-month school year.

* Appointment of all school superintendents.

* Make the new-found gaming industry an integral part of Mississippi's economic development package.

Those are just a few of the recommended goals set by a broadly-based Special Task Force for economic development after a year's study in a report recently tossed to Mississippi's policy-making public officials and put into the realm of public discussion.

Visionary. Radical. You might describe the Task Force study either way. Skeptics, of course, will call it something else: pipe dreams, that ain't going to happen here.

At least it is refreshing to know that some people in and near the decision-making center of the state are thinking, and talking aloud, about what needs to be done to make Mississippi competitive in world markets in the next millennium.

The Task Force, chaired by Jimmy Heidel, executive director of the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development, is the outgrowth of a 1989 legislative mandate to maintain a continuing long-range economic planning study to make the state globally competitive.

After a one-shot study was made nine years ago, and a turnover in state administrations, the long-range study idea laid dormant until revived last year. To his credit, Gov. Kirk Fordice gave it the go-ahead to be revived.

And Heidel, who was initially cool to re-starting something begun in a previous administration, became enthusiastically involved, once the 23-member, broadly-based special task force was in place. Included on it are some of the top leaders in business, industry, and economic development.

In submitting the Task Force year-long study, Heidel admitted that some of its recommendations "are departures from the norm," but he added "business as usual will not get the job done" in global competition.

First some individual policy-makers in the Legislature were briefed on the report, and then in September the Task Force laid it before the full Joint Legislative Budget Committee. It got a courteous reception, which sometimes bordered on incredulity and other times a sudden eagerness to get the proposals rolling.

"We've stirred up all the forces and made them realize some things have got to change," said Pete Walley, Director of Long Range Economic Planning for the state College Board, who is chief assistant to the task force. Walley was the prime mover a year ago who got the Task Force reactivated.

When it went before the legislative group, the Task Force didn't throw the entire ball of wax at the lawmakers. Instead, it concentrated on five priority recommendations in its report, dealing with areas from concentrating state workforce training programs, to installing the state's gaming industry as an integral part of long-term economic planning, rather than a temporary fringe benefit.

Lott, Cochran praise plan to build cruise ships at Mississippi shipyard American Classic Voyages Inc. and Ingalls Shipbuilding of Pascagoula are negotiating for the construction of cruise ships which will operate in the Hawaiian Islands, U.S. Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran said.

"This potential contract will mean job security for Mississippi workers and access to a quality American-made product for AMCV," Lott said.

The vessels will be the first cruise ships to be constructed in the United States since the late 1950s. Because these ships will fly the U.S. flag and operate in the Hawaiian Islands, they must be built in a U.S. shipyard.

"This will lead to the largest U.S.-built cruise ships ever constructed, and the first built here in more than 40

Lott's colleague, Senator Thad Cochran, also praised the negotiations.

"This is great news for Ingalls Shipyard and confirms that good things happen when you do quality work and to it on time," Cochran said.

The ships are planned to be Panamax vessels, which are the largest able to transit the Panama Canal. The 840 foot, 71,000 ton ships are projected to carry 1,800 to 2,000 passengers.

The contract is expected to call for the initial design and construction of two ships, with an option for a third.

Task Force for economic development recommends radical, visionary goals

Foremost, the Task Force urged lawmakers to immediately proceed with consolidating the state's now widely-fragmented workforce training programs into one state entity if Mississippi is going to be competitive in the global market. That may seem a rather simple task for the lawmakers to handle with dispatch, but it isn't, because it involves loss of turf and funds which now are spread among seven separate programs and two state departments.

The special Task Force proposal wants to put all workforce training dollars into the state Board for Community Colleges by the end of 1999. The early reading from legislative sources is the idea was favorably received, with accompanying safeguards to prevent diversion of the workforce training money to other community college purposes.

"It is almost a given now that you have to have a trained and ready local workforce for companies, particularly the increasing number of multi-national corporations, to even consider you as a location," declared Walley, the long-range planning director. "No longer do companies want to train workers after they decide to come to a state," he added.

At the same time it called for workforce training upgrading, the group declared a priority for the state's educational system to be modified to give students a better mastery of reading, language and math skills in order to graduate. Ability to comprehend and carry out instructions for equipment usage is now essential in the workplace, the Task Group said. It already has asked state Board of Education to upgrade its functional literacy examination.

For the time being, the Task Force put two of its most controversial education objectives on the back burner: First, its proposal to utilize school buildings year-round, including sunrise-sunset classes; and second, its advocacy of appointive school superintendents. To the latter recommendation, House Education Chairman "Billy McCoy (D) Rienzi, responded: "that won't happen as long as I'm still here."

That the Task Force recognized gaming as now a major long-term factor in Mississippi's economic development is, perhaps, the most fascinating aspect of its report. Declaring that the existing state Gaming Commission falls short of melding gaming to the state's overall economic development, especially entertainment and tourism, the Task Force called for funding an independent consultant study under the Department of Economic and Community Development to bring gaming more closely into the state economic package.

District discusses safety King exhibition opens

BY B. R. HAWKINS

Nationally-known expert in school law, Johnny Purvis spoke to a small gathering of parents and school officials Monday night at a public forum hosted by the Bay-Waveland School District on School Safety. He stressed the importance of involving parents and guardians in school activities to fostering safer school environments.

"Safe schools are dependent upon relationships," said Purvis, director of the Southern Education Consortium's Education Service Center at the University of Southern Mississippi and the leading authority on school violence and school law. "I refer to the relationship as the 'trinity.' It is essential that there be a strong working relationship among the home, school and community."

Purvis was one of the speakers on the forum's agenda which included comments from each school administrators, the board and city law enforcement officials.

District superintendent Mike Reed opened the program by explaining why the district felt there was a need for a public forum on safety.

Reed told the gathering of an August 27 incident involving a Bay Middle School student who brought a .22 caliber revolver to school. The student has been expelled from school and faces charges in the Hancock County Youth Court.

"I have been advised to not let this isolated incident become the rule," Reed said. "They are the exception. We have to proceed on the principle that our schools are literally the safest place our kids can be."

Reed said immediately following the incident, the district began reviewing and revising its school security plans. Plans that outline the school's response and responsibility in the event of crisis.

He, too, stressed the need for community input and the need to "hear each other talk," Reed told the audience of approximately 20 to 30 parents, city and school officials that good things are coming about.

He cited a number of examples, including a $68,170 COPS grant the city and school district received earlier this year to be used in the coordinating work to addressing school related crime, which shows the districts efforts to prevent similar incidents. Other programs being consideration are security cameras, photo ID cards, and caller ID.

From the board & staff

Major Tim Krause, commander of the high school's ROTC program, told the audience that the schools, for the first time, included bomb threats and fire drill procedures in the handbook.

He said staff members voluntarily patrol parking lots and secluded areas of the campus. "We utilize a Saturday school program to isolate a violent kid from the rest of the student body," he said. "The program is very disciplined. We work with the student with a curriculum and counseling in order to achieve a positive response from the kid to circumstances."

Bay Middle School Principal Lily DeBlieux focused attention to the school's full-time counselor, a day-treatment class which serves as an alternative classroom for students with behavior problems, a conflict resolution program in place in all classrooms, as well as the beginning of a mentoring program across the district.

"All schools in the district have begun inviting parents into the schools for coffees where we talk and tour the building," she said.

Kathryn Wilson, principal of North Bay Elementary, told of the school's 'buddy system' where students whose classroom open to green space on campus, do not leave the classroom without being accompanied by another student. The campus has also begun a procedure of locking the front and annex building doors.

Waveland Elementary School Principal Donna Jones emphasized the role their counselor plays in helping students develop necessary life skills and the efforts the staff goes to in being prepared for emergencies.

To offer perspective to the August 27 incident with the gun at school, Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil said this was the first legitimate weapon confiscated in his tenure.

"We have had picks, ball point pens and even a pocket knife or two," he said.

McNeil said it was the department's goal this year to speed up their response time to the schools. Officers now respond to the campuses within three to five minutes of a call. He also introduced Sgt. Don Watson who serves as a physical presence at the high school on most days.

"Parents ultimately have to deal with the child," McNeil said, "Parents must be involved to re-enforce the school system. Then when something goes wrong, they know what is going on. They are the key to the process."

Board member Bryon Griffith of Waveland spoke on behalf of the Board. He and Barbara Boston were the only board members present at the forum Monday.

Griffith, too, looked to parents to take more responsibility for their children's actions and to become more involved in student activities.

"The gun at Paducah was a family member's gun... The gun," he said. "It is unlikely that a kid who exhibits a behavioral problem developed the problem that day."

From the expert

Purvis said he reviewed the district's handbook, its policies and procedures in dealing with crisis, and he reviewed the way the August 27 incident was handled once the gun was discovered.

He offered his endorsement of the procedures and said that from the time the gun was found the situation was handled very, very well, both tactically as well as legally.

He praised the district's receipt of grants and particularly its working relationship with police and the youth court.

"In comparison, other schools in other districts can expect to wait 18 to 20 minutes before police respond. A two- to five-minute response time is phenomenal," Purvis said.

He made few suggestions for change to the district's existing security program. He suggested consideration of clear or netted backpacks and elimination of hall lockers.

He encouraged the use of caller ID and identification cards for students. He asked that the conflict resolution curriculum be augmented with a anger resolution program. He urged the continuation of Saturday school and additional monitoring of campus areas such as parking lots and secluded portions of campus.

He said the expanded use of a mentoring program would be beneficial in providing role models for students.

In summation, he returned his focus to the triadical relationship of home, school and community as ultimately being responsible for students' welfare.

"This about relationships, relationships, relationship," he said. "From the janitor to the bus driver to the principal, you have to know about your kids. Know their names. Know something about their homes. Data shows that it's two to three percent of the student body that is responsible for 85 percent of the problems. That means 95 percent of our kids are doing good work. Let them know that you appreciate that work. You have to build good, respectful relationships. I cannot stress the importance in involving parents and guardians in order for your school to be safe."

From the parents

The remaining time in the forum was open to the handful of parents in attendance. Kathy Everard, a grandmother guardian of a 10-year-old student, held up a half page sheet of paper.

"I want to comment about the number of people here tonight," she said as she held up the paper on which was the written notice of the forum.

"This is the only notice I got about the meeting tonight, and while I am here, I know plenty of others who aren't who are very concerned about this. You talk about parents needing to be involved, and then we get one afternoon's notice on a half sheet of paper with no letterhead and no signature?"

Dr. Reed responded saying notices had been sent, and articles had appeared in the paper regarding the meeting.

Following the forum, Reed said he had learned later that Bay High School did not send home notices of the forum and that Bay Middle, North Bay and Waveland Elementary schools had only sent notices home Monday afternoon.

Purvis interpreted Everard's comment to indicate a lack of communication on the part of the district.

David and Susanne Maley asked about consideration of school uniforms, which Mr. Maley said help prevent kids from displaying gang colors or hiding weapons.

Dr. Reed indicated that the board had taken preliminary look at uniforms but had not reached any conclusions. He also voiced concerns about students who have been expelled from school being able to return. Maley said his son is afraid, and he is afraid for his son. Mrs. Maley questioned the ease in which anyone may come on campus and asked about the use of ID cards for students.

Mr. Griffith answered saying that the board had looked seriously at using ID cards, but expense and opposition from parents having to replace lost cards prevented any further consideration.

Local artist Amber King is featured at Serenity Gallery, 126 Main Street, Bay St. Louis at the Second Saturday Artwalk Oct. 10. The show will run through Oct. 31.

The collection of oil paintings was created over the summer and includes abstracts, large monochromes and colorful figurative works, and small original etching, including the

"white angel" etching

King is known for her strong color and dynamic line and craftsmanship. Her strong line is illustrated by the life-sized monochromatic works in sepia. Her color is particularly evident in the large figures.

Two of her paintings were recently selected to hang in the new Women and Children's Pavilion at Hancock Medical Center.

Center

King holds advanced degrees in art from the University of California, Tulane University and the Academic Julian in Paris, France. She lived and painted in Carmel, Calif. for over 20 years and moved to the Gulf Coast in 1990.

She works in her studio at her home in Bay St. Louis, where she also prints her own original etchings.

Judge upholds conviction

BY ED LEPOMA

A Circuit Court Judge has upheld the conviction of Shirley Gates, 42, charged with robbing graves from the Fenton-Sand Hill Cemetery off Firetower Road last April.

Gates, of the Vidalia Community, was arrested April 22 after relatives who had family members buried in the cemetery videotaped her taking items off graves.

She was initially tried before Justice Court Judge Lee B. Klein and agreed to plead guilty to four counts of petty larceny and to make restitution to victims. The court was also shown the videotape.

Klein fined Gates $1,000 on each count of petty larceny, the maximum allowed under the law. He also sentenced her to jail for six months on each count to run currently and to make restitution to victims. Her attorney announced she would appeal, and she has been out on $1,500 bond.

On Monday Circuit Court Judge Jerry Terry upheld the conviction and sentenced Gates to six months in jail, but suspended five months of the sentence pending two years of good behavior.

Gates must spend one month in jail and pay a $500 fine.

Claunch seeks congressional seat

Bob Claunch has announced he is a Reform Party candidate for Congress, 5th District of Mississippi.

He is a registered professional engineer who has spent most of his career in the private sector. He has produced five patents in the environmental field and is an experienced problem solver.

Claunch and his wife Louise have three children and three grandchildren. They are both members in the Presbyterian Church and have worked with youth groups. He is a Mississippi veteran of the Korean War serving overseas on two separate occasions.

Claunch says, "Some of the important issues facing our nation are campaign and finance reform to reduce corruption and treason; term limits to insure a better chance for citizens to represent us in Congress; a balanced budget to prevent us from passing debt to the next generation; fair trade, not free trade, to reduce the trade deficit;

"Saving Social Security to save a system that returns our money to us; stopping the export of jobs overseas and hiring foreign workers to bring down wages at home; saving disabled veterans programs; controlling our borders and bringing control of our schools back to the states.

"The Democrats and Republicans have joined to limit our voting rights by making it difficult for independent parties to get ballot access. Campaign financing comes from big business, foreign governments and special interest groups.

"All of these groups provide money to both parties to whom they give directions for voting on national issues.

"We must first eliminate the grip of big business and special interest on all of our political parties.

"All of our issues can be resolved in favor of the American people when we get the corruptive influence of big money out of our political process.

"It is time that we start worrying about the American working people instead of big business, Wall Street and the banking system.

Ronnie Kole to perform Sunday in Diamondhead

The Diamondhead Performing Arts Society will present Ronnie Kole and His Trio in an acoustic performance Sunday, Oct. 11 at 7 p.m. in the Diamondhead Community Church.

Kole and his trio last performed with the DPAS in September 1995 when they played to an enthusiastic audience.

A long time New Orleans favorite, Kole has performed throughout the United States and abroad. As a pianist of great international acclaim, he has graced many famous stages, including Carnegie Hall and the Ritz Hotel in Paris.

He has played twice for Pope Paul II, both in New Orleans and Vail, Colo. and for Presidents Ford, Carter, Reagan, Bush and Clinton.

There have been many grand salutes to Kole throughout his career. The one that seems most fitting was expressed by Prime Time's Bobby Van Deussen when he referred to Kole as a "flash" pianist, a "monster." In musical idiom, a monster being something godlike, and a "flash" pianist is one with a lot of chops, meaning he plays real well.

Kole has been honored with many awards, among them being named to the Louisiana Hall of Fame, the Paul Prudhomme Award for the person doing most for the Louisiana food industry (the first non-chef to receive this award), the Hornblowers Award by the Public Relations Association of America, and the annual Role Model Award given by the Young Leadership Council. Tickets are $15, available at Diamondhead Discount Drugs, LL, Ltd. and at the door.

Cochran announces energy, water projects

Agreement has been reached on the Energy and Water Appropriations Conference Report for fiscal year 1999, Senator Thad Cochran announced.

"The bill contains over $80 million in funding for energy and water projects in Mississippi, and it will contribute in a positive way to the economy of our state, while protecting the environment," Cochran said.

The bill provides $4 million to prevent deterioration of the Natchez bluffs and to continue stabilization efforts. $4.5 million is also included for funding for the Diagnostic Instrumentation and Analysis Laboratory at Mississippi State University for the Department of Energy's Environmental Management Program.

The bill contains $49 million in funding for flood control construction and operations and maintenance projects in the state. It includes $15.2 million for construction in the Yazoo Basin, with $10 million going to projects along the Yazoo River and $7 million for the Sunflower River Basin. Another $100,000 in funding was approved for the Pearl River Watershed Study.

The Committee approved $12 million for construction of Phase II of the Pascagoula Harbor. It will widen the Bayou Cassotte channel from its junction with the main Pascagoula channel to the mouth of Bayou Cassotte to ensure safer navigation. $6.2 million was appropriated as appropriated for the Jackson County Water supply project.

After approval of the Conference Report by the House and Senate, the President is expected to sign the bill into law.

Federal disaster loans are now available from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) for homeowners, renters, landlords, and businesses located in Forrest, George, Greene, Jones, Lamar, Pearl River, Perry and Stone counties due to damages caused by Hurricane Georges.

These counties were added to President Clinton's October 1 disaster declaration that included Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

Because the SBA Disaster Assistance Program is the primary form of federal assistance to these affected by a disaster, most homeowners, renters and all businesses will be referred directly to the SBA for low-interest disaster loans when they register for assistance.

SBA offers loans of up to $200,000 to repair disaster damaged homes. Homeowners and renters are eligible for up to $40,000 to replace personal property. Loans to businesses and non-profit organizations of up to $1.5 million are also available to repair damage to real estate, machinery and equipment, inventory, etc., and for leasehold improvements.

Socially disadvantaged loan funds available

The Farm Service Agency (FSA) has loan funds to help socially disadvantaged beginning farmers, including minorities, buy land for farming or to operate farms in Pearl River/Hancock County, said David Warrington, state executive director.

Under this program enacted by Congress, socially disadvantaged are women, Hispanics, Native Americans, African Americans, Asians and Pacific Islanders.

FSA tries to find beginning farmers who are interested in farming and can qualify for an FSA farm ownership loan. The agency can sell or lease to those who are eligible, a farm held in its inventory or make a loan for purchase of land on the open market, said Farm Loan Manager Jackie D. Williams.

FSA can also provide other loan assistance, including operation loans, and advice, if needed, to help the beginning farmer get started.

People who think they may be eligible, whether they already are in farming or would like to become farmers, are urged to contact the FSA county office in their area, said Warrington.

Defrauding, gauging . . .

Beware of dishonest post-disaster costs

Damage caused by Hurricane Georges could result in South Mississippi residents becoming victims of unethical or unqualified repairers or businesses.

Although judgement is often impaired during times of emergency, there are several ways consumers can avoid fraud.

"It's against the law for businesses to overcharge, and this type of emergency is a prime opportunity for that," said Jan Lukens, Extension consumer management specialist at the Coastal Research and Extension Center in Biloxi. "If that does happen, it should be reported to the Attorney General's Office."

The Better Business Bureau and Attorney General's consumer affairs division are reference tools that consumers may use. One of their concerns is contractors who are not licensed or properly bonded. These agencies recommend getting information on the company before money is exchanged. Request references and phone numbers of any contractor.

Insurance companies should be able to recommend contractors. It is also wise to use contractors that are well known within the community.

Contractors should carry proof of general liability and workers' compensation insurance in case someone is hurt on the job. The homeowner could be liable if the contractor has no insurance.

Do not pay for services until the work is completed satisfactorily. Make payments by check or credit card.

"High pressure persuasion is often used by fraudulent contractors," Lukens said. "Think carefully before you decide on a contractor. Don't be talked into things you don't need."

A written contract is imperative. The contract should include the name, address and phone number of the contractor; a written description of all the work to be done and the quality of the materials to be used; and a bid based on the job, not the unit (hour, gallon, board).

A price breakdown for labor and materials, start up and completion dates, and a written statement reiterating any oral promises made by the representative, including warranties, should also be in the contract. Always review the contract carefully before signing it.

Hearing difficulty:

You are not alone

If you or someone in your family is having increasing difficulty hearing, House Ear Institute specialists have this advice:

Losing something as valuable as your hearing is very discouraging. Many people react emotionally, becoming suspicious or fearful.

These feelings are natural and should not be denied, but discussed with family and friends. Understanding why greatly relieves the emotional pain caused by the "loss."

To lead a full and happy life free from emotional side-effects, one must accept the hearing loss. As long as one clings unrealistically to the hope for a physical cure, only a half-hearted attempt will be made to adjust to the change in their life.

Background noises help us to feel a part of our environment and contribute to our sense of being alive. When sounds such as a clock ticking or birds chirping disappear, our relationship to the world around us changes and a feeling of "deadness" and depression accompanies the loss.

Hearing loss makes social gatherings a real physical and emotional strain. Not being able to follow the conversation often causes embarrassment and withdrawal from social activities.

Be patient and understanding with yourself as you adjust to living with a hearing loss. Seek counseling and professional help and reconcile yourself to using properly fitted hearing aids.

less than what the city code requires, and his plans was approved by the building inspector. "Maybe I should have gone to the Planning and Zoning Commission," he said, "but that's beyond the point."

In other business Tuesday, council again imposed a 120-day moratorium on any construction in the area of the city that it annexed to accommodate what would become Casino Magic's complex. To take in that tract, the city also annexed the Cedar Point area. None of the property has been zoned by the city in eight years since the annexation, however.

City officials have been unable to come to agreement on a Comprehensive Plan for development, a prerequisite to zoning. Several months ago, a controversial side yard variance request in Cedar Point popped up before City Council -- and was resolved by recognition that the city had no zoning regulations in effect in that area.

Council members have resumed periodic meetings on the Comprehensive Plan matter, hoping to hammer out a plan acceptable enough for adoption.

Council ended its public meeting Tuesday with an executive session to discuss litigation, and potential litigation, over drainage project issues.

Earlier, council had agreed to hold aside a $23,000 payment to the engineer in charge of the project. Mayor Eddie Favre said council would meet in executive session again next Tuesday with parties involved in the dispute.

Council also plans to continue its Comprehensive Plan deliberations in an open session of the Tuesday meeting.

Library — Construction to begin recommended awarding the contract to the Biloxi firm.

Supervisors concurred, and work is expected to begin within the next couple of weeks. The contract calls for the construction to be completed within 250 days.

Supervisors returned from lunch expecting to get the details needed to put the long-delayed Juvenile Detention Facility out to bid a third time.

But, James Polk, the Hattiesburg architect selected to design the facility and a proposed expansion of the county jail, pleaded for more time.

"I wish I could give you some good news," said Polk, "but, we're not quite ready to put the project out to bid."

Polk said the computer-controlled security control system originally planned for the juvenile facility came in at around $108,000 when the project was last bid. After talking with Sheriff Ronnie Peterson and the committee charged with helping to design the facility, Polk said, new plans were to make the security more of a mechanical system, than one which is computer operated. He estimated a mechanical system could be installed for around $30,000.

Polk told supervisors other costs could be shaved by reducing the size of the second-floor lobby and witness rooms, by reducing the exercise yard to be built atop the roof, and by scrapping plans to build over the records room of the old courthouse. The Board has about $1.2 million for the juvenile facility and jail expansion.

Polk said the planned revisions to the design must also be approved by the state department of Archives and History and the local Hancock County Historical Society since the juvenile Detention Center is going to be built at the rear of the historic County Courthouse.

Some supervisors thought Polk might be able to put the project out for bid again as early as their recess meeting later this month, but Polk said the Kentucky firm that is working with him on the design probably could not meet that deadline.

It was obvious that District 3 Supervisor Lisa Cowand is growing weary of the delays, and she pressed Polk for a specific time.

"I just want to know how much time you need," said Cowand. "I want a specific date."

Cowand got Polk's promise that the bid specifications would be ready for the Board's December meeting, "hopefully sooner."

finances which have accrued and financially are not in a position to pay them. Now, the city's only alternative is to put those people in jail," said Waveland City Attorney Ronnie Artigues, explaining that when those individuals are sent to jail the city pays the expenses. "The work-release program) avoids the housing expense and allows the city to get some benefit in the form of labor. As long as it can be coordinated with (Public Works Director) Ray Eaton and the Police Department, it will save the city money."

—The board approved two recommendations from the Planning and Zoning Commission.

A 13-foot variance from the rear building setback was approved for Gloria Ladner on property located at 507 St. Jude Street.

A variance from the minimum lot size requirement in order to create five lots from a parcel of property on Waveland Avenue was approved for Phillip Garcia. Four lots will comply with the subdivision standards.

—The Nov. 3 Board of Aldermen meeting has been rescheduled to Nov. 4 due to the Republican and Democratic primary potential use as the initial historic district boundaries.

In another change, the new district would be under the auspices of an Historic Preservation Commission including up to nine members. Previously, the committee had suggested a panel of up to 21 members.

The proposed ordinance would require owners of historic properties to have significant alterations, or demolitions, of historic properties go up for action before the Preservation Commission. New construction in the district also would be subject to the commission's action.

Landmark designations also are provided for under the proposed ordinance. And there are provisions for recognizing "unreasonable economic hardship" conditions which would be recognized in some cases.

The ordinance's provisions to prevent demolition of valuable properties is seen as one key in the proposed city law. And officials hope the new system will help avert construction of new structures that are incompatible with historic surroundings.

Candidates final list for Waveland

BY BETSY GAGNET

Qualifying ended Saturday at noon for the upcoming mayoral and alderman elections in Waveland.

The Democratic and Republican primaries are scheduled for Nov. 3, and the general elections are scheduled for Dec. 1.

The following candidates have entered the race for mayor:

John C. Mason, Republican (incumbent); John "Tommy" Longo, Democrat (currently Alderman Ward 1); and Deborah A. Richter, Republican.

In the four races for Alderman a total of 14 candidates have qualified.

Ward 1: Milton Bernard, Democrat; Jay Joseph Fountain, Democrat; Nikki S. Tings-trom, Democrat; Frank J. Perniciaro, Republican; and Rhonda Aime-Grant, Republican.

Ward 2: Richard "Ricky" Geoffrey, Democrat; Peter J. Gondrella, Jr., Republican; Joseph B. Fleuriot, Republican (incumbent).

Ward 3: Louis "Louie" Smolensky, Democrat (incumbent); and Ralph L. West, Jr., Democrat.

Ward 4: Ross C. Burke, Republican; W.E. "Bill" Cross, Republican; Charles Piazza, Democrat; Santo A. Saucier, Democrat.

At Tuesday's regular meeting, the Waveland Board of Aldermen authorized hiring Jimmy Ladner to serve as an election consultant for the city's primary and general elections.

The hiring came after the board was informed that the Democratic election committee consisted of only one person who had no previous experience with an election. All services provided to one political party will be made available to the other political party on an equal basis if requested.

However, supervisors and the city mayors were told by FEMA to document costs of all work by county and city employees, all resources, such as machinery and equipment that is used by the three governments, and FEMA will reimburse them.

The four designated burn sites where haulers can take the debris are at Pearlinton, Old Catahoula, Old Standard and a private 40-acre site at Bayou LaCroix.

Supervisors refuse blame in millage rate increase

BY ED LEPOMA

Two Hancock County supervisors have refused to share in the blame for a 1.44 mill property tax hike passed on to those who live in the county school district.

If you own a $60,000 home, that means you will pay about $8.64 more in taxes than you paid last year, but the observation coming out of conversations between School District Supt. Terry Randolph and supervisors Philip Moran and Steve Seymour was that neither the school board or the supervisors had any control over what happened.

Randolph explained that the school board's fiscal year runs from July 1 through June 30, and the board had to come up with a spending budget for next year based on estimates of appraised value. The final assessment approved by the Board of Supervisors wasn't made until three months after the start of the school year, July 1.

He said the estimated assessment figures, furnished by Lee Bennett, the county's chief tax appraiser, led the school board to conclude that overall assessment for the new fiscal year would be at least $2.1-Million. Adding this to the previous years' assessment would have given the board a total of $155,335,665 more to work with, Randolph said.

"Based on our budget request, this would have resulted in a decrease to the taxpayer (in the school district) of .33 mills," Randolph said. Instead, Randolph said, the actual appraised value of all property came in $2.7 million below what was collected last year. Considering appraisals represent 10 percent of actual value, Randolph charged, "Over $30 million in real market value fell into the Gulf."

Randolph said the shortfall was caused because the tax assessor made adjustments or gave a reduction to citizens who came in to complain about their tax bills.

District 4 Supervisor Steve Seymour said there was no politics involved in the reduction policy.

"We opened the door for all the people," said Seymour. "Anybody and everybody was given a certain time and the same opportunity to have their taxes reduced if they didn't think the reappraisal was justified," Seymour said.

And, Board President Philip Moran said supervisors got caught by surprise, too.

Moran said, based on estimates, supervisors had hoped to cut the present millage, but were forced to scrap that idea and put a cap on further spending by various county departments as the fiscal year's end approached Sept. 30.

"We got caught just as you did," said Moran.

Moran and Seymour originally voted against the 1.44 millage increase needed to finance the school board budget. Both said they are mandated by law to approve the millage, but, at the same time, they have no control spending by the School District.

Seymour continued to stand his ground after Randolph's presentation.

"I'm not going to take the blame," (for the tax increase) Seymour said. This ain't coming on my back."

Randolph said the school board doesn't have any control over the estimated assessed valuation of property, so it is difficult to come up with a budget four months in advance. "It's an impossible situation," said Randolph.

Baldree named director

Coast Electric Power Association Board President Gordon Lee has announced that James Baldree, of Pearlinton, has been elected to the company's board of directors.

His election to the board comes following the untimely death of director Roy Baxter Jr. Baldree will complete Baxter's unexpired term representing Coast Electric members in District 1, Hancock County.

Baldree, a Hancock County native and lifelong resident of Pearlinton, served for eight years in the Hancock County School District and five years of those as principal. His experience also includes over 20 years as principal in the Bay St. Louis School District. Having retired from the school district, he is currently employed with Johnson Controls at the Stennis Space Center.

"Coast Electric is fortunate to have Mr. Baldree join the board," commented General Manager Robert J. Occhi. "His extensive knowledge of the area, its residents and our organization will greatly benefit all Coats Electric customers as well as those in District 1."

Baldree has served on Coast Electric's Nominating Committee for the past 12 years and was recently appointed to the company's Advisory Committee.

Workers unemployed due to Hurricane Georges may file claims for benefits

Because President Bill Clinton has declared the counties of Hancock, Harrison and Jackson, as well as Forrest, George, Greene, Jones, Lamar, Pearl River, Stone and Perry counties as disaster areas due to Hurricane Georges, unemployed workers in those counties may be eligible for Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA), the Mississippi Employment Security Commission (MESC) announced.

Self-employed workers and those who work for employers not covered by unemployment insurance may apply for DUA. These workers are required to bring a Social Security card and, if possible, a copy of their 1997 income tax return and documentation showing earnings and employment prior to Hurricane Georges.

Workers filing for DUA have until Nov. 2 to file their claim.

Unemployed workers, who are eligible for UI benefits through another program cannot collect DUA benefits for the same week.

Coastal offices of MESC where unemployment benefit claims can be filed are located in Pascagoula at 4100 14th Street, in Biloxi at 2306 Pass Road and in Gulfport at 2229 22nd Street. Claims can also be taken at any claims office of MESC statewide.

Unemployment benefits of up to $190 per week are payable to workers who become unemployed through no fault of their own.

Each claim must be reviewed to determine if the unemployed worker is eligible for benefits.

Andrews awarded license

Commissioner Lenny Sawyer, 5th Congressional District, Gulfport, announced Gwendolyn Andrews of Hancock County has received a salespersons license.

Real estate examinations were held for the month of September in Jackson for those persons desiring to enter the field of real estate sales, rentals and other related real estate activities.

The examination consists of 100 questions prepared by the American College Testing Services (ACT) for real estate license law officials across the United States and Canada.

Peter, Paul & Mary performance to aid hurricane victims

Grand Casinos, in a partnership with the Mississippi Coast Coliseum and Convention center, the Sun Herald and WLOX-TV, are sponsoring a special benefit concert featuring legendary folk-singers, Peter, Paul & Mary, Friday, October 16, 8 p.m. in the Convention Center. All ticket proceeds will go to the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army to help victims of Hurricane Georges.

Tickets are $10. each, minimum donation, for general admission seating. Guests are urged to bring non-perishable food items as well as additional financial donations with them to the concert. Collection boxes will be located near the doors of the convention center.

It was more than three decades ago when three folk singers, Peter Yarrow, Paul Stookey and Mary Travers combined talents and made their debut at Greenwich Village's "Bitter End" Coffeehouse. What began there has grown into a legacy thanks to such timeless recordings as "Leaving On A Jet Plane", "In The Early Morning Rain", "Blowin' in the Wind" and "Puff The Magic Dragon". The group has used its special talents to help raise public awareness and funds for many causes. Their opening night of a week on Broadway was a fundraiser on behalf of the New York Coalition for the Homeless. Their "25th Anniversary Concert", broadcast in support of public television in 1986, became one of the most popular specials and most successful fundraisers in PBS history.

For ticket information, call the coliseum box office at 228-388-8222, ext. #1, or to order by phone, call 228-385-2600. Tickets are $10. and are also available at all TicketMaster outlets.

Jan & Dean bring free beach music to Magic Casino Magic Bay St. Louis announced the upcoming performances of popular 60s duo Jan & Dean Thursday and Friday, Oct. 8 and 9.

The concerts will be held in the Magic Entertainment Complex at 6 and 9 p.m. and will be free of charge.

Jan Berry and Dean Torrence's California beach sound resulted in the sale of more than 30 million records between 1960 and 1966. Teen idols Jan and Dean performed their first concert with the Beach Boys in 1962.

Their career was skyrocketing when suddenly one of their hit records, "Dead Man's Curve," became all too prophetic for Jan Berry. On April 12, 1966, Berry was involved in a catastrophic car accident which put him in a month-long coma, left him partially paralyzed and at first, unable to speak.

His valiant fight to recover from his injuries was chronicled in his return performance in 1977 and in the 1978 CBS-TV movie, "Dead Man's Curve."

The duo's first top-10 hit came in 1959 with "Baby Talk." Other gold records followed, including "Surf City," "Little Old Lady From Pasadena," "Drag City" and "Honolulu Lulu."

For information, call 1-800-5-MAGIC-5, ext. 4015. Must be at least 21 years of age to attend a concert at Casino Magic.

Last Year's Cars

Third Annual Cruisin' the Coast features classic cars and cool music

The Mississippi Gulf Coast hosts "America's Largest Block Party" this weekend Oct. 8-11 during the third annual Cruisin' the Coast. Centered around the rock n' roll of the era of the 1950s and 60s, Cruisin' the Coast will feature more than 1,500 classic car enthusiasts from across the county cruisin' in rods, customs and antiques along the sensational Mississippi Gulf Coast beachfront.

The celebration will begin Thursday, Oct. 8 at Hancock Plaza in downtown Gulfport, with the Hancock Bank and K99 FM Welcoming Block Party scheduled from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Kickoff Parade will follow from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in Long Beach.

During the four-day event, car buffs will enjoy daily organized cruises, auto swaps meets, car shows, regional cuisines, carnival rides and outdoor concerts as they cruise to designated stops in Biloxi, Gulfport, Long Beach and Bay St. Louis.

Registered car owners who complete all mandatory stops on the route will be eligible for $15,000 in cash prizes to be given away 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11 at the Gulfport Rice Pavilion.

"Once again, Coast casinos have teamed up to provide Cruisin' participants with an award winning lineup of top-notch performers," said Beverly Martin, executive director of the Mississippi Casino Operators Association.

For Cruisin' information and a schedule of events call 604-4488.

SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1998

Rob Harmon Football Forecast

NFL Forecast
Sunday and Monday,
Oct. 11-12

Arizona, 16—Chicago, 12
The Cardinals' and Bears' defenses are better than their offenses. Chicago won the last time they met, in 1994.

Baltimore, 23—Tennessee, 16
Except by the Oilers in '96, the Ravens swept them in '96 and '97. To win and have a fighting chance at the Central, Baltimore needs to put the ball up.

Buffalo, 20—Indianapolis, 10
Not behind, the Bills pulled off the second-best comeback in their first '97 faceoff with the Colts, winning the match. Buffalo won a kick-off, 9-6.

Dallas, 27—Carolina, 24
Who've have forgotten the 23-13 loss to the Panthers last December that knocked Dallas out of the NFC East title. This will be a good one.

Denver, 21—Seattle, 17
In their last four games against the Seahawks — 20-17, 17-10, 17-10, 17-10 — but the Broncos will have their hands full in a hostile Kingdom.

Kansas City, 28—New England, 14
Taken three in a row from the Patriots since '90, the Chiefs' air game goes, so goes its of defense. No better pass defense than K.C.'s.

N.Y. Giants, 19—Atlanta, 13
At 6-6, but the Giants and Falcons haven't met in only confident prediction is that these two solid defenses will give up a lot of rushing yards.

N.Y. Jets, 22—St. Louis, 19
The NFL's most productive passing games, St. Louis against a weak N.Y. defense. The Rams have won six of seven with the Jets, including the last four.

Philadelphia, 24—Washington, 18
In '97, the Eagles beat the Redskins and then the Redskins beat the Redskins. OK, when was the last time the Redskins beat the Redskins? Not long ago: '94.

Pittsburgh, 31—Cincinnati, 9
The Bengals for the fifth time in seven years in '97, the Steelers were led by Jerome Bettis' running and forcing defense. The dominance continues.

San Diego, 17—Oakland, 16
Fourth- and fifth-place finishes in the AFC West for 11 years, the Chargers and Raiders split their fifth game in '97. S.D. 25-10, Oakland 38-13.

San Francisco, 35—New Orleans, 15
Thank they're pretty good the 49ers are their reality. S.F. forced eight turnovers and beat N.O. 33-7, then gave up just six first downs and won again, 23-0.

*Jacksonville, 26—Miami, 23
(Monday) A matchup this potentially explosive should be scheduled at least once a year, but, surprisingly, this is the first Jaguars-Dolphins meeting. The second might just happen in the playoffs.

College Highlights for Oct. 10

As we predicted, the Florida Gators' plans for an undefeated march to the national championship were spoiled three weeks ago against Tennessee. Last year, though, we never saw Florida's shocking first loss to LSU coming — and neither did the Gators, which is why they'll be more than ready for that rematch this Saturday.

Exactly a year ago in Baton Rouge, the LSU Tigers pulled off one of the biggest upsets of 1997, scoring two TD's in a span of 1:33 of the fourth quarter to stun the top-ranked Gators 28-21. Not only was it LSU's first win over a No. 1 team in the 104-year history of its football program, but it ended Florida's 25-game Southeastern Conference winning streak. We think the Gators, playing at home, will want this one badly — and will win by six points.

In the meantime, we're closing our eyes and picking Tennessee by an eyelash in another crucial game in the South, over host Georgia. In '97, the Volunteers, then ranked ninth, had an easy time with the No. 13 Bulldogs, winning 38-13 as freshman running back Jamal Lewis and QB Peyton Manning ran and threw for 575 of Tennessee's 628 total yards. This year, however, Georgia has its best shot at ending a losing streak to Tennessee that stands at seven. The Bulldogs won't quite pull it off.

Out West, Kansas State will make it two in a row over Colorado — in Boulder, no less. Last year in Manhattan, Kan., the Wildcats beat the Buffaloes for the first time in 13 years, 37-20. In two other closely matched battles of four of the nation's best teams, we like Arizona at home over UCLA and Oregon and the road against Washington State. The Wildcats will have to scratch and claw to upset the Bruins, but the Oregon Ducks, like Florida, will be pumped full of revenge, recalling how they outgained the Washington State Cougars in '97 while squandering a handful of scoring chances on the way to a 24-13 loss.

Potentially great games are everywhere this week. Nebraska won't have nearly as easy a time with Texas A&M as in last year's Big 12 championship game, when the Cornhuskers scored on all seven of their first-half possessions and routed the Aggies 54-15. Miami should stay within a TD of visiting Florida State (in contrast to the Hurricanes' 47-0 embarrassment at the hands of the Seminoles in '97), and look for another tight Alabama-Mississippi battle. Finally, Notre Dame-at-Arizona State looks like a near-tossup, but who really knows? The teams have never met.

Hancock Hawks win in overtime

BY B. R. HAWKINS

After four quarters of regulation play, the Hancock High School Hawks defense held their ground and kept Pearl River Central out of the end zone in overtime play to win 19-13 over the Blue Devils.

The first quarter of play was marked by penalties as both teams struggled to strike a rhythm. Early in the second quarter, Blue Devil junior fullback, Jason Bennett broke through the Hawk's defense on a quick trap and ran 62-yards for the first score of the night.

Hancock took the ball the 37 and in three plays, on an almost perfect delayed option to senior halfback, Darryel Williams from the 47, the Hawks posted their own score. The point after was blocked. Pearl River still led 7-6 with 10:14 remaining in the second quarter.

Pearl River took the ball to the end zone with less than three minutes remaining in the half on a 22-yard pass play to Trent Lee only to have the play called back on an offensive penalty. The half ended with Hancock taking over the ball on downs.

Sophomore halfback Chris Goff took the second half kickoff to the Hawk's 38-yard line. Hancock took the ball in the longest drive of the game, 15 plays for 49 yards, to the one-yard line only to lose the ball at the one on a fumble with 4:22 left in the third quarter.

The Blue Devils, unable to make a first down, punted to the Hawks who took over on their own 22-yard line. Seven plays later and early into the fourth quarter, on first and 10, Blue Devil defensive end Jeff Stocks-till scooped up a fumble and raced it to the Hawk's 3-yard line. Tailback Nicky Lee picks his way through the Hawks' defensive line and scores. The point after failed. Pearl River led 13-6 with 8:34 left in the fourth quarter.

Hancock takes the kickoff to the 47 and less than 20 seconds later, Williams breaks through the Blue Devil's line a runs 51 yards for a touch down. Pearl River led by one.

The Hawk's two point conversion failed, but a Pearl River penalty kept the drive alive and Hancock kicked an extra point. Regulation play ended with the score tied 13 all.

Hancock took the ball for the first series of plays from in the 10-yard line in overtime. Quarterback Josh Whitfield lowered his head and plowed to the seven on a quarterback sneak. Williams takes a handoff at the one and drives into the end zone. The point after attempt failed. Hawks lead 19 to 13.

The Blue Devils take the first play from center straight up the middle for five. And in a show of determination, the Hawks' defense stops the runner on the two. Third down gained the Blue Devils less than half a yard. With fourth and less than two feet to the goal line, the Hawks completely wraps the of-

"We're back!" shouted head coach Rocky Gaudin to his team as they raced to the sidelines, "And don't it feel good!"

The Hawks rushed for 270 yard and picked up 47 yards passing. Williams ran for 188 yards on 24 carries including all three touchdowns. Goff picked up 30 yards on four carries.

Rocks lose heartbreaker to Columbia Wildcats

BY DWAYNE BREMER

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws came within inches of winning their second straight game against a strong division opponent, but fell short, losing a heartbreaker 20-11 to the Columbia Wildcats 20-11, last Saturday afternoon.

"It was a very good high school football game," said Rock head coach Dave Kenson.

Columbia started off the game on offense. The Wildcats drove to the Rock 45, before D'Mitri Sofianos intercepted a pass from Donovan Walker at the Rock 43.

The Rocks then returned the favor to the Wildcats, as Jason Santiago's first pass was picked off by Nick Davis at the Rock 47.

The Wildcats then drove deep into Rock territory, with runs by Walker for 7 and 18 yards. The Rocks defense held tight in the red zone, as Neil Favre sacked Walker, and on a fourth and 12 play, B.J. Peralta broke up a pass to give the Rocks possession at the 24.

Santiago then went to the air, connecting with Steven Knight on a post pattern for 37 yards. The Rocks could not take advantage of the big play, however, and punted giving the Wildcats the ball at the 20 with 3:11 left in the first.

The Wildcats then moved 80 yards in 11 plays for the first score of the game. Walker led the way, gaining 15 yards on the first play, then connecting Chris Robbins three plays later for 17 yards and a first down. Steve Odom gained five, then Walker ripped off runs of seven, then eight, then 17 yards, to get inside the Rock 10. Walker then took it in from five yards out. Michael Bradshaw added the point after, and with 9:46 remaining the Wildcats led 7-0.

The rest of the first half was scoreless. The Rock defense was solid not allowing another first down before the break.

The Rocks came out of half-time inspired. Kris Cannon took the kickoff back 28 yards to the 37 to start things off. Cannon then hauled in a pass for 13 yards, and ran for seven, and three yards to give the Rocks a first down at the Wildcat 40. Calvin Wilbert then took a pitch, and ran over defenders down to the 24. Wilbert then ran for seven yards to the 16. The drive stalled, but Charles Raymond came on to boot a 36 yard field goal, to put the Rock on the board 7-3 with 7:51 left in the third.

The Wildcats took over at their own 19 after the kickoff. Feeling the pressure put on them by the Rocks, the Wildcats responded with a 18 play drive, that covered 81 yards, and took almost ten minutes off the clock.

The Wildcats converted on four third down plays on the drive, none bigger than a third and 14 from the Rock 30. Walker was under heavy pressure on the play, but was able to connect Robbins for 16 yards, and a first down to the Rock 14. Steve Odom took it from four yards out, three plays later, and the Wildcats were able to extend their lead to 14-3 with only 10:47 remaining.

Most teams would have folded up their tents, but the Rocks showed plenty of poise and heart, striking back with a touchdown drive of their own.

The drive started with Roger Ridgeway bringing the kickoff back to the 36. Cannon then broke lose for 21 yards to the Wildcat 45. Cannon then ran for five yards, then took the ball again, this time gaining 22 yards to give the Rocks a first down at the Wildcat 18. The Rocks kept feeding Cannon the ball, and with some good blocking, Cannon gained seven yards, then four yards, to give the Rocks a first down at the Wildcat 6. The Rocks needed four more plays to score. Ridgeway dove over from one yard out, and with 6:04 remaining the Rocks had moved closer 14-9.

Coach Kenson then called for a two-point conversion play, to try to get the Rocks to within a field goal. Santiago rolled out right, then tossed to a sliding Stephen Peterman, who made the catch to make the score 14-11.

The Rock defense then came up big, stopping the Wildcats on three plays to give the offense the ball back.

With 3:57 remaining the Rocks took over at their own 34. Cannon carried for a yard, then Santiago threw to a wide open Knight, who had the ball just go off his fingertips, on what would have been a sure touchdown. Santiago threw incomplete on third down, and on fourth down threw to Knight again. This time the pass was too high, and the Wildcats took over at the Rock 34.

The Wildcats then delivered the knockout punch, as Odom scampered in for a touchdown on their first play. Steven Peterman blocked the point after for the Rocks, but the Wildcats had a 20-11 lead with only 2:51 remaining.

The Wildcats stopped the Rocks next possession, and then ran out the clock to end the game.

Kris Cannon netted 90 yards on 13 carries for the Rocks. For the Wildcats the star was Donovan Walker, who ran for 164 yards on 26 carries. "We were just trying to run the clock, and hold on," said Walker.

"We played a little sluggish, but this was a tough game, and St. Stanislaus is a tough team," said Wildcat coach Joey Porter.

Rock coach Dave Kenson was not pleased with the outcome, but did praise his team afterwards. "We played great on defense up until the last play. We did plenty of things right out there, and we played hard. Columbia did a very good job, of controlling the clock," said Kenson.

The Rocks dropped to 2-4 for the season with the loss, their second tough loss in three weeks. "I feel like we were getting much better, were close to turning the corner," said Kenson.

4B-THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1998

Traveling theatre

Students at North Bay Elementary were entertained recently by The Covenant Players. The group of young adults travel around the country presenting skits to children and adult audiences. The skits are humorous and entertaining, but also teach very important life skills, such as how to get along with others, not to make fun of those who seem different to us, and the importance of helping others. The Covenant Players spent the day at North Bay in order to work with small groups of students. Each of the six groups spent about 45 minutes watching and laughing as the skits were presented. A discussion and question time followed each skit. The program was arranged by the North Bay PTO and was partially funded by GE Plastics.

Parents can help students on upcoming statewide tests

About 24,000 students in grades four through nine are set to take the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills or the Tests of Achievement and Proficiency during the next several weeks, with students unaffected by Hurricane Georges set to take the test Oct. 6-9.

Coast students affected by the storm are set to take the test Oct. 20-23.

The tests include both multiple-choice items and items that require a written response. Questions gauge both factual knowledge and students' ability to use factual knowledge to solve real-life problems.

The multiple-choice portion of the tests includes reading, language and math sections.

"These tests are an opportunity for students to show us what they know — what they have learned and how well they can apply it," said Valerie Troiani, division director for Norm-Referenced Testing.

Student test scores weigh heavily into the formula used to determine district accreditation levels.

Cramming for the tests is a futile endeavor.

"These tests are not designed to measure what a student learned while studying the night before," Troiani said. "They are very comprehensive, evaluating what a student has learned through the course of their school experience."

However, there are a number of tips parents can use to encourage students to do their best.

Students should be alert and comfortable going into the tests. This means youngsters should be rested and should eat at least a light breakfast.

Parents also may want to consider dressing students in layers. Providing students with a light jacket or sweater is a particularly good idea.

"You don't want students to be distracted because they are hot or cold," Troiani said.

Parents should do their best to preserve students' routines during testing.

"You don't want children to be distressed because something out of the ordinary is going on at home," Troiani said.

Parents also should encourage students to pace themselves throughout testing. Students should be careful not to spend too much time on a question they find difficult.

"There are going to be some questions students don't get," Troiani said. "Students should be assured that's OK."

While parents should explain the importance of statewide testing to students, they should be careful not to overdo it.

"Children need to know they should do their best, but that this is not absolute life or death," Troiani said. "You don't want them to be anxious. I think the best thing to do is simply to explain that these tests help to determine students' strengths and weaknesses. Teachers just want to know where students are and how they're doing."

Bay Catholic raises funds for research

The students of Bay Catholic are taking shots at heart disease and stroke, the nation's number one killer. On Nov. 2-5, the school will hold its first Hoops For Heart event.

Students will display their basketball skills to raise funds for the American Heart Association.

The funds help support cardiovascular research as well as educational programs like Heartpower.

Hoops for Heart empowers children as they provide vital community service and discover that they can make a difference.

At the same time, students enjoy group dynamics while participating in a fun-filled basketball event.

For information, call Williams at 467-5158.

The University of Southern Mississippi has announced that Amy Jennifer Yarborough has been awarded the American Legion Post 139 Richard Thames Scholarship. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Yarborough. She is a senior majoring in speech pathology and is a 1995 graduate of Bay High School.

MSU hosts Weekend in October

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during October.

The trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The 10 trees are Sugar Maple, Red Oak, Pin Oak, Green Ash, Thornless Honeylocust, Weeping Willow, River Birch, Tuliptree, Silver Maple and Red Maple.

"Spectacular fall colors are among the many benefits of these beautiful shade trees," said John Rosenow, foundation president.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between Nov. 1 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions.

Members also receive a subscription to Arbor Day, the foundation's monthly publication and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To receive the trees and a six-month introductory membership, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Shade Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Oct. 11.

Season delayed

Teams will check the reefs as soon as possible, and a hotline has been set up for more information. The number to call is 1/800 385-5902.

Collage organizers

Organizers of the Pass Christian's first ever Collage — a weekend of popular traditional events scheduled Friday — Sunday, Oct. 16-18 include, from left, Linda Cook, merchants chair; Marion Simpson, sailing races and yacht club buffet chair; Cindy Woods, 'Celebrate the Gulf' co-chair; Myrna Megrotto, chef for 'Luncheon in the Park'; Bob Fairbank, 'Celebrate the Gulf' co-chair; Malee Hearing, 'Festival of the Arts' vice chair; Anne Tucker, 'Toast of the Coast' chair; and Helen St. Paul, Festival of Arts chair.

Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Diamondhead artists ready for Pass Christian's Collage

For the first time Pass Christian has combined its most popular traditional events into one weekend celebration scheduled Friday through Sunday, Oct. 16-17.

Opening the weekend of celebration Friday will be Celebrate the Gulf at Pass Christian Harbor and the Festival of the Arts in Memorial Park on Scenic Drive.

From 10 a.m.-4 p.m. the next day two major celebrations will take place simultaneously.

"Celebrate the Gulf" at Pass Christian Harbor will offer lively, hands-on exhibits including, but not limited to, sea kayaking demonstrations, first-hand check-outs of shrimp and charter boats, a kids' fishing rodeo, Gulf Coast craftsmen, red-fish release, New Orleans Aquarium of America's Aqua Van and ongoing demonstrations and activities, including diving and wetlands exploration.

With Bob Fairbank as chairman, it promises to be a spectacular event for the entire family with free admission and parking.

At the same time, Helen St. Paul will be directing her enthusiastic volunteers at the 5th annual Collage Festival of the Arts in Memorial Park on Scenic Drive. Forty area artists will show and sell their two- and three-dimensional work.

Prominent among these are Jeanne Warner, Janet Reeves, Denise McCardell, Dot Copleland, Kathe Calhoun, Kurt Salla, Nell Heyns, Sory Yager and Shirley Rames.

The festival also features music and other activities and gourmet luncheons catered by Myrna Megrotto will be served. The festival supports the Dot Hector Art Scholarship. Admission is free.

The fun continues Saturday evening as the Pass Christian

Yacht Club holds a sundown race in front of the club for the L-16 fleet with a buffet dinner and entertainment in the clubhouse.

Prepaid reservations are required for the dinner. Co-chairmen Marian Simpson and Malee Hearing suggest early reservations as they are expecting this event to bring a "full house."

Sunday offers a "Tour of Beachfront Homes" and a continuation of the Festival of the Arts in Memorial Park. Both events take place 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Admission is free. Lunch served at Festival of the Arts.

On Saturday and Sunday a trolley will take people from one event to another.
